Paul David Tripp

Dear Pastors,

I remember when I first saw it; it blew me away. It's just one word, but it has the power to change you and everything you think about ministry. It bestows on you the greatest of honors, while at the same time putting you in your place. It tells you exactly what you are supposed to do as a pastor, while alerting you to the things that are not your responsibility. It calls you to more than you're able to do, while lifting burdens off your shoulders at the same time. No single word defines more clearly and helpfully what the life and ministry of a pastor was designed by God to be than this one word.

As a pastor, you have been called to be an ambassador. There is only one thing an ambassador is commissioned to do: represent. You have been called to a distinctly representative approach to your life and ministry. You have been called, in every single thing you do, to represent the message, methods, and character of the Savior King who sent you. Whether at home or at the church site, whether in public preaching or a private conversation, you are to make the invisible grace of the King visible to those who desperately need his grace.

This means ministry is not about your dreams for success or your desire for respect. No, it is only ever about him. Remember, ministry success is never an endorsement of your character, but God's revelation of his own.

There is tremendous freedom in this ambassadorial calling. God doesn't burden you with the responsibility to produce the change of heart, the growth of the church, or the gospel success that only he can produce. He simply asks you to faithfully represent him, and he promises you every grace you need to do just that.

A pastor, author, and conference speaker, Paul Tripp is driven to help people understand—and embrace—the healing gospel of Christ in our broken world. He has produced 14 teaching series and written 17 books, including What Did You Expect?, Dangerous Calling, Parenting, and New Morning Mercies. He and his wife, Luella, have four grown children and live in Philadelphia.
