Lavender Tides Series

SAVE $13 on the series

Washington State's lavender fields can hide deadly secrets! In The House at Saltwater Point, Ellie is thriving as a house flipper. Her business has been so profitable that she hopes to keep her next fixer-upper—a traditional home with ocean views. But her dream is interrupted when her younger sister, MacKenzie, vanishes. Now Ellie can't concentrate on anything but solving the disappearance.

When "Mac" was last seen, she was restoring her beloved tall ship, the Lavender Lady, in order to participate in a local regatta. Sure, she'd argued with Ellie and her ex-husband, Jason, before vanishing. But Ellie can't believe she'd just leave when she had so much to look forward to. That, plus a mysterious smudge of blood on the Lavender Lady's deck, seems to indicate foul play. With the whole town searching, Ellie can only hope her sister is still out there somewhere, alive.

When Coast Guard intelligence officer Grayson Bradshaw is assigned to investigate, he has more on his mind than MacKenzie's welfare. He's reeling from the days-old discovery that he was adopted as a toddler. He suspects MacKenzie of drug trafficking . . . and spying for North Korea. But Ellie won't believe it! It couldn't possibly be true, could it? 336 pages each, softcovers from Nelson.

Freedom's Light

Hannah Thomas never expected to be widowed at 18. When she married John, she moved from her beloved Charleston to the rocky coast of colonial Massachusetts where he tended twin tower lighthouses. Now after his execution by the British, she's become the mistress of the lights. It's lonely, grueling work for a woman, and she gets no help—not even from her wealthy mother-in-law who lives down the road.

Then one night during a ferocious nor'easter, a British ship smashes onto the rocks and the vessel's handsome captain, Birch Meredith, washes ashore. Hannah nurses him back to health—and fights her attraction to him. She knows she can't betray her country or her faith by falling in love with a Tory and non-believer. Birch loves her, too, but he has a secret that he must keep hidden—he's a spy for George Washington.

The pressure on Hannah to marry a man John's family has chosen for her; the townspeople's constant disapproval; the appearance of Hannah's wayward sister, Lydia; and the unwelcome attentions of British lieutenant and unscrupulous suitor Galen conspire to pull Hannah and Birch apart. Will Freedom's Light shine through war's darkness and liberate them to love each other as God intends? 336 pages, softcover from Nelson.

The First Love

During the summer of 1951, Maggie Esh is in need of hope. Struggling with rheumatoid arthritis, the pretty, spirited 18-year-old wonders if she'll ever marry. The young men of her Old Amish Order treat her with kindness, and Jimmy Beiler has even asked her out. But she refuses his offer because she isn't sure if he pities her or is genuinely attracted to her. She wishes she could look forward to a normal, healthy life like other young women, but she can't help second guessing the motivations of her would-be suitors. Her frustration is only compounded by her grief. Less than a year ago, her dear mamm—the only one who really understood her—passed away. Now Maggie's sister Grace has become her advocate, but it's just not the same.

As Maggie deals with her illness and recovers from her mother's death, her father, Joseph, drops a bombshell. He and Lancaster County newcomer—and much younger—Rachel Glick are getting married! Rachel is happy in her new role as Joseph's wife, but being a stepmother isn't easy. She's finding it difficult to deal with Maggie's erratic health. Thirteen-year-old Leroy is a handful and sometimes outright hostile. Because she grew up in Lebanon County in a family of sisters, she's not used to boys. Is she misreading him? Joseph insists that his children simply accept Rachel as their new mom, but it's clearly not working.

When a tent revival comes to town, it's a welcome distraction for the beleaguered Esh family. Maggie's Mennonite cousin Lila Witmer encourages her to attend the next meeting. Curious, Maggie works up her courage to ask her father. She's happy when he gives her his permission—but not surprised when he issues a stern warning against "chasing the notions of outsiders." In spite of her dat's exhortation, Maggie is drawn to the preaching of the traveling evangelist. His words cause her to reconsider what she knows about her faith. She's also attracted to his thoughtful and friendly son. Could her unquestioning acceptance of her circumstances be closing her mind to God's will for her life? Can she learn to trust God—and dare to hope for a better future?

Beverly Lewis opens a window on the heart of a sweet, vulnerable young woman as she experiences The First Love she's ever known. 352 pages, softcover from Bethany.

The Amish of Hart County Series

Suspense and romance collide in Hart County! As Sadie Detweiler travels by bus from her home in Millersburg, Ohio, to Munfordville, Kentucky, Her Fear threatens to overwhelm her. Her unforgiving Amish family kicked her out when she told them about her pregnancy. Harlan—the baby's father and a respected man in their conservative Swartzentruber community—has denied paternity. So now Sadie must adjust to life in the rundown house of her Stauffer grandparents, uncle, and cousins. Although she's grateful they've taken her in, she finds the men gruff and her cousin Esther secretive.

Shortly after Sadie arrives, her grandmother, Verba, collapses. When EMT Noah Freeman responds to the call, Sadie is drawn to the warm, confident, easy-going Amish man. But she has little hope that Noah will reciprocate her feelings when he finds out she's with child. Plus, her curmudgeonly relatives have made it clear that they don't want outsiders on their property.

Noah is equally attracted to the vulnerable young woman with the deep blue eyes. But he senses an oppressive tension permeating the house. He suspects that something is wrong. When Verba dies in the hospital, he's sure of it. Then news of two more deaths rocks the town. Toxicology reports reveal that the victims—including Verba—had been poisoned!

As Noah's worry for Sadie grows, so do the sheriff's concerns as he and his team investigate the mysterious deaths. When he asks Noah to dig around the Amish community for answers, Noah reluctantly agrees. He doesn't like spying on his neighbors, but at least he has a reason for stopping by the Stauffer house to make sure Sadie is all right. When she was forced to tell him about her pregnancy, he did not take the news well. Now his visit to the Stauffers has a two-fold purpose—to make amends with Sadie and discover what her relatives are hiding.

Meanwhile, Sadie's family has been sending her letters begging her to come back to Ohio. She suspects their request springs more from their worry about their own reputation than concern for her. How can she return to a house ruled by her iron-fisted father? Will Noah ever be able to love her—and another man's child? What's causing people to die?

In August of 1990, Khaled Ebeid was studying in Paris when he learned that armed men had raided his family's home and taken his father. He ran to Caroline, the love of his life, for comfort—only to find the apartment empty and every sign of her gone. Ebeid later confirmed that she wasn't a teacher at the Sorbonne after all, but a CIA operative whose assignment was to seduce him and get information about his father's extremist ties. He felt humiliated and betrayed, knowing that all their special moments had meant nothing to her. When he successfully ambushes a classified government shipment of anthrax, he's only days away from achieving his goal at last!

But the terrorist continues to evade him, and Luke's sure that with all the time that's passed—and everything he's seen and done—nobody even wants him to come back.

In Dead Drift, Gallagher learns that his nemesis is operating somewhere near Baltimore, making plans for an unspeakably malicious attack on the United States. That means Luke can—and must—return to the people he cares about. But with Ebeid undoubtedly watching his every move, will his love only endanger them?

The Tox Files

Military operative Cole "Tox" Russell never stops fighting for justice! In Thirst of Steel, he's eager to begin his new life with his fiancée, Haven, but first he must complete one final mission: locate the infamous sword of Goliath.

Originally fashioned in Old Testament days and wielded by the Philistine giant, the artifact is subject to a historic curse. Centuries later, the weapon still craves its enemies' blood.

The quest for the sword begins when Tox's estranged colleague, Levi, is called to a grisly crime scene in Northern Virginia. There, in the leafy suburbs of modern-day Washington, D.C., a millionaire has been murdered in his home. While forensic experts document the scene, Levi notices that the victim's extremities have been melted away by chemical burns—and the primary cause of death is a large puncture wound to the chest. Not only that, the body is glowing . . . which reminds Levi uncomfortably of something he's seen before.

Could this be the work of the deadly Arrow & Flame order? If their reach has stretched as far as the nation's capital, he clearly needs to bring in Tox, despite the rift in their friendship. Take a walk on the wild side with the Peak Rescue Team! In Storm Front, a tornado ravages a small Minnesota community—leaving a group of students and their team leader, Chet, stranded in its wake. Ty will stop at nothing to rescue his mentor—but he never dreamed that his former girlfriend, Brette, would also be pulled into the twister's path.

It's hard to explain, but freelance photographer Brette is less afraid of monstrous mesocyclones than she is of daily life. Ever since she was diagnosed with cancer, the raging winds provide a calming focus, especially when she's with her experienced storm-chaser friends, Jonas, Nixon, and Geena—and safely behind the lens of a camera.

Exhausted by a long regime of chemotherapy, radiation, and surgeries, Brette is determined not to return to the doctor again. She'd rather take her chances with field-destroying funnel clouds, torrential hailstorms, flying debris, and friends that don't know her well—or at least not as well as Ty did before she left.

Nantucket Legacy Series

It's been six long years since Captain Ren Macy sailed from Nantucket in search of whale oil. Now that he's returned, he's dismayed because everything has changed! His wife, Jane, is gravely ill; he discovers he's the father of twins; and he learns that his partner and cousin Tristram has jeopardized their business by commissioning an expensive new ship.

After Jane dies, Ren's sister-in-law Daphne becomes a second mother to his children. Bold and spirited, she doesn't defer to the authoritative whale master. Instead she recognizes they are bound together by grief for Jane. As Ren struggles to dig himself out of debt, rein in his profligate cousin, and protect his Barbadian second mate from a bounty hunter, Daphne encourages him to return to his Quaker roots by Minding the Light within him.

Falling for Ren isn't in Daphne's plan, especially since she's Tristram's fiancée. Love always comes at a cost, but when is the price too high? Will she find guidance in the old diary of an illustrious ancestor? Suzanne Woods Fisher invites you to walk with a Quaker woman and an irreverent sea captain through a summer that will forever change their lives. Approx. 320 pages each, softcovers from Revell.

The Lady of Tarpon Springs

When Dr. Lucy Penrose discovers she's inherited her father's sponge-diving business, she asks her friend and lawyer Zanna Krykos to run it instead so she can focus on medicine.

Zanna's Greek family is dismayed that she's working as an attorney—and is still unmarried. So when she informs them that she's agreed to Lucy's request, her father will consent on one condition only—that once things are operating smoothly, she'll visit their homeland with her grandmother and let "Yayá" find her a husband!

Meanwhile, Nico Sevdalis leads a group of 50 men who will introduce Greek diving methods and equipment to America. After working aboard sponge boats on the Aegean Sea since age 14, he's acquired a vast knowledge of the trade. And he's looking forward to making the most of this opportunity—until he realizes that attractive but inexperienced Zanna is in charge! She quickly shows him, however, that while he knows plenty about sponges, he has a lot to learn about the United States.

As they face a series of unexpected complications together, Nico and Zanna discover they make a good team—but when the business finally settles down, will Zanna be forced to find a husband—or has he already found her? 352 pages, softcover from Bethany.

More Than Meets the Eye

People think Evangeline "Evie" Hamilton is cursed. First she was born with mismatched eyes, then both her parents died when she was young. Now the gossip in the small Texas town of Pecan Gap says her "brothers" aren't even her relatives.

Evie has fought hard to find her way in a world that constantly rebuffs her. And because she's felt the sting of judgment herself, she's incapable of turning away the downtrodden. She knows that the support of even one person can help overcome rejection, and Evie has two—Seth and Zach, former orphans she now counts as family.

Meanwhile, Logan Fowler wants revenge. He's spent seven years hardening his heart, hiding his feelings, and learning the subtle tricks of cheating card players—all to get revenge against Zacharias Hamilton, the criminal responsible for his father's death. But instead of finding the solitary ruthless gambler he envisioned, Fowler discovers a man his own age with an unusual family. And when Zach's sister, Evie, insists on dousing him with sunshine every time they meet, his quest becomes completely derailed.

Who is truly at fault for Logan's lost legacy? And will redeeming past wrongs satisfy him if it means forfeiting a future with Evangeline? 352 pages, softcover from Bethany.

River to Redemption

When cholera sweeps through Springfield, Kentucky, in 1833, a slave named Louis rescues 7-year-old Adria Starr from a house where the bodies of her deceased mother, father, and young brother lay. Passing up the opportunity to escape from bondage, Louis believes the Lord has called him to stay in town to tend to the living and bury the dead. He prays for Adria's future, and God leads him to widowed schoolteacher Ruth Harmon who welcomes the orphan into her home.

After his owner's death 12 years later, Louis is slated for the auction block in spite of his heroic actions during the epidemic. Adria is determined to buy his freedom. But how? She can't ask Carlton Damon, her wealthy, persistent suitor. A slave-owner himself, he would never accept her abolitionist beliefs. Nor can she depend on Logan Farrell, a charming drifter who barges into her life. But eventually she finds allies in Ruth, Pastor Will Robertson, and others in town. Nevertheless, she faces an uphill battle in 1840s Kentucky. Can she help Louis cross the River to Redemption?

Partially based on a true story, Ann Gabhart's historical novel will immerse you in a tale of courage, honor, and faith! 336 pages, softcover from Revell.

A Daring Venture

If biochemist Rosalind Werner could get people to believe in her team's groundbreaking work, she could help eliminate waterborne diseases in New York City! But commissioner Nicholas Drake is skeptical. Though the two feel an attraction, they're on opposite sides in an increasingly inflammatory battle. Could their love be the key to a resolution? 368 pages, softcover from Bethany.

RH218828 Retail $15.99 ..... CBD $9.99

Revolutionary scientific advancements, pioneering women in the workplace, crusades for immigrants' rights, political conflict in the public arena—there's so much of historical interest here. Camden digs in with tenacity, exposing the truth behind the urban-expansion backdrop of glamor, power, and wealth. Her juxtaposition of how people really live and how they could live in a brighter future is fascinating. Civics lesson + romance + exciting writing = great read!

The Love Letter

The daughter of Hollywood royalty, Chloe is determined to make her own mark—and find romance. When screenwriter Jesse meets her, he believes she's perfect to play the role of Esther Longfellow, the woman to whom his Revolutionary War grandfather wrote a heartfelt message. Will a love letter from the past have an impact on their future? 352 pages, softcover from Nelson.

RH351009 Retail $15.99 ..... CBD $9.99

RH216686 Hardcover 24.99 18.99

La La Land meets The Patriot in this split-time romance about very different times linked by love. Especially endearing is the plight of Chloe, our 21st-century protagonist. A hopeless romantic and aspiring actress, she's been typecast in Hollywood as "the queen of death scenes" because, at age 29, she's died onscreen so many times. You'll root for her to finally experience an offscreen story where the characters live happily ever after!

Amy K. Sorrells

Before I Saw You

Waitress Jaycee Givens is struggling. An unplanned pregnancy leaves her vulnerable to the baby's abusive father, and a tragedy puts her mother in prison. The only people who care about her are her quirky neighbor, Sudie, and kind diner patron Gabe. Can they help her decide whether true love means hanging on—or letting go? 432 pages, softcover from Tyndale.

RH409561 Retail $15.99 ..... CBD $10.99

Also available:

RH432796 Hardcover 24.99 19.99

Sorrells has written a remarkable story about opioid addiction that helps us understand what it's like loving someone who is afflicted. Her slow-paced tale of small-town life ripples with haunting sadness and beautiful kindness—reminiscent of To Kill a Mockingbird or The Secret Life of Bees. Lyrical, emotional recollections of Jaycee's heartbreak devastate, but gorgeous imagery and touching characterizations lift you up. In the end, hope surpasses the hurt.

A Rumored Fortune

Tressa is on a treasure hunt. Because her father didn't trust banks—or greedy relatives—he hid his riches on his English estate. Now Tressa has no funds to run the mansion and vineyard. Can she and the rusticated foreman keep the laborers content without pay and find the money—before her opportunistic relations do? 400 pages, softcover from Revell.

RH728734 Retail $15.99 ..... CBD $9.99

Blending a journey of self-discovery with a quest for fortune, Politano's twisting, turning tale will keep you guessing as you become caught up in Tressa's frantic search. Trevelyan Castle holds prominent place in the captivating cast of characters, as do the high society boundaries of 19th-century England. And the vine keeper's poignant notes at the beginning of each chapter offer pithy metaphors for faithful living. A satisfying story of suspense!

Delayed Justice

After experiencing an abusive childhood, attorney Jaime Nichols is determined to defend the innocent. But when a figure from her past rises to prominence, she's removed from her cases. Veteran Chandler Bolton works with children who need a refuge. As Jaime and Chandler fight to protect a child, will she find the justice she was denied? 352 pages, softcover from Nelson.

RH217916 Retail $15.99 ..... CBD $11.99

Unfolding against the postcard-perfect backdrop of contemporary Washington, D.C., and its leafy suburbs, Putman's redemptive drama is equal parts legal page-turner and romance. Relationships drive the story, yet the author's experience as an attorney shines through in compelling courtroom scenes—making them convincing and suspenseful. In a cast of likeable characters, the scene-stealer is a tail-wagging golden therapy dog named Aslan! An absorbing story of justice, courage, and new beginnings.

The Reckoning at Gossamer Pond

The Midwestern town of Gossamer Grove looks charming on its surface—but century-old mysteries lurk beneath the facade! Annalise comes face-to-face with the community's seedy past when, after a local murder, she inherits the "crime scene"—a rundown trailer filled with old revival posters, obituaries, and pictures. Is she in danger now, too? 352 pages, softcover from Bethany.

RH230296 Retail $14.99 ..... CBD $9.79

Ever look at an old sepia-toned photograph and wonder what the stern-faced people in it were really like? Setting a brooding mood in this split-time tale, Wright captures their secrets with her foreboding gothic-like tension so well, you'll breathe a sigh of relief when the weight lifts. Loosely based on actual events, it's an intriguing portrayal of God's grace and forgiveness.

As far as he knows, David Galloway can't die. As those he loves grow old and perish, he becomes increasingly isolated in his Michigan used bookstore, until at last he finds others who share his predicament. But when crimes come to light that are older than any mortal, what will God require of him? 320 pages, softcover from Shiloh Run.

RH225511 Retail $14.99 ..... CBD $8.49

Weaving a shining romantic plotline reminiscent of Natalie Babbitt's Tuck Everlasting into a suspense-driven story more akin to Highlander, Stevens's skillfully written novel is captivating from page one—and raises powerful questions! Is our limited lifespan on earth really a curse—or a blessing? How long could a mortal bear to live in this sinful world? And how long can a Christian recluse, even with honorable intentions, thrive apart from the church? Profound and memorable. We're hoping for a sequel!
